

1882 CABERNET SAUVIGNON 2019

1882 was the first vintage produced by Inglenook founder Gustave Niebaum. That same year, Niebaum dug a small cave into the Mayacamas foothills on the back edge of the estate in his search for optimal barrel aging conditions. We have preserved that special 1882 cave on the estate – an enduring touchstone and symbol of Niebaum’s spirit of innovation and exploration, which continues to live on at Inglenook today.

2019 Vintage Notes:

The 2019 growing season benefited from the wet winter that replenished soil moisture and prepared the land for an excellent vintage. A cool spring delayed budbreak of our red Bordeaux varietals until the second week of April, leading to superb conditions for bloom, which occurred just after a rainy week in late May. Much of the fruit for our 2019 Cabernet Sauvignon 1882 was picked between October 8th and 14th from the Bale clay loam soils of Rutherford. The timing of harvest allowed for gradual, even ripening and optimal maturity.

Winemaker’s Tasting Notes:

- Visually stunning with its deeply opaque, ruby red color, the 2019 Cabernet Sauvignon 1882 is aromatically inviting, showing notes of black currant, plum, cedar, and vanilla.
- Flavors of wild blackberry, espresso, and a touch of tobacco emerge on the palate, underpinned by a ripe and velvety mouthfeel.
- Overall, the wine represents an impressively nuanced expression of classic Rutherford Cabernet Sauvignon.
